Dear Scott,

Well this year is over! Hard to believe but it's true. How do you like the poem? I think it's the best one in this book. Not only that, but it's classy, super-out, great & all around fantastic! (Modest little I'd aren't I!?!) Enjoy the summer & stay cool.

Love always,
Judy Nicita

P.S. You really do look sharp!

Knotted floorboards uniformly beaten smooth Creaks and groans betray a weariness Life was exciting then Seasons rushing in and out Blowing fortune in the wind Teath gleaming with laughter and silver bullets danc

Old tree
Bent with the wisdom of age
your roots in the past your branches reaching for the future
growing towards heaven
I wish to climb thee

Stranger

I want to wander free
among the grapevines of my thoughts and catch the shadow
I have lost I've changed too fast and now there is a stranger where I used to be.
Endless time is spent trying to find the real me.

This is (like) the movement of daily life.

But then there is a break in the clouds through which flows sunshine, bringing warmth and understanding to our feelings.
